Tuesday designated 'National Barrier Awareness Day'

Tuesday is "National Barrier Awareness Day" to foster public understanding of the obstacles faced by people with disabilities. Eighty percent of Americans will experience some disability in their lifetime. Many disabled people face financial, cultural and physical barriers because of a lack of public understanding of their needs. President Ronald Reagan signed a proclamation in 1986 recognizing the day as one for all Americans to help those faced with disabilities live up to their full potential.
